KIMO GOES TO EGYPT

KARMA KREATIVE

A postcard-sized adventure

Kimo has a little card and a very big question:

“How much adventure can I fit on here?”

Come along. Look closely. Share your ideas.

Our story visits Cairo and nearby Giza over two days, with Layla and her mother as Kimo’s guides.

A Friendly Hello in Cairo

“Welcome to Cairo, Kimo!” Layla waved. Kimo bowed so low that his turquoise scarf brushed his knees. Layla laughed. “That is a very big hello!” He had brought a pencil and a tiny blank postcard. “I want to show Grandma Egypt,” he said. “Where shall we start?” “Come with us!” said Layla and her mother.

What do you think Kimo will draw for Grandma today?

The Big River Nile

Layla led Kimo to a wide, sparkling river. “This is the Nile,” she explained. “It flows right through our city!” Kimo gazed at the boats floating by and the tall buildings lining the water. He held his pencil thoughtfully. So much to see! This river was definitely postcard-worthy. He carefully drew a wavy blue line.

If you were Kimo, what else would you add to this river drawing?
